Our Statement On Business Conduct
A Message from Al Monaco

Dear Colleagues,

What we do every day matters to millions of people. By connecting energy supply to where it is needed—to keep us warm, take us places, power our industries, schools and hospitals and fuel our economy—we support prosperity and quality of life for millions of people across North America. The energy we deliver enables North Americans to achieve their fullest potential.

We are proud that Enbridge makes an essential contribution to our society and we must never forget the responsibilities placed upon all of us. We are stewards of a large, complex organization that transports, distributes and generates energy and that will evolve considerably over time as global and environmental conditions change. The people with whom we interact—our colleagues, Indigenous communities, business partners, customers, investors, land owners and members of the public—count on us to do our work safely, reliably and in an environmentally responsible way, respecting their interests and always conducting ourselves and our business with integrity. The Enbridge values—Integrity, Safety and Respect—guide and support us as we work to secure Enbridge’s success, now and in the future.

The Enbridge Statement on Business Conduct reflects both the vital role we play in people’s lives and the important responsibilities that are placed upon us. Without trust, we do not have a business. The best way to continue to earn and preserve the trust of those who count on us is to look to our values and our Statement on Business Conduct to guide our decisions and our actions. More than just a rule book or a compliance manual, it gives practical guidance to help us recognize and address areas of uncertainty and risk, make the right choices and act in a principled way. Doing so will not only foster a culture in which we can thrive, it will enable us to continue to build an even stronger, more resilient and performance-driven company.

Sincerely

Al Monaco
President & Chief Executive Officer
Living our Enbridge Values

We live our values in support of:

- Integrity
- Safety
- Respect
- Our Communities
- The Environment
- Each Other
The Importance of our Statement on Business Conduct

Our behavior defines our character in the eyes of others. The right character and behavior matter to us because they are the basis for the trust Enbridge needs to succeed as a company. By acting in ways that reflect and support the Enbridge values, we contribute to a positive and powerful culture that enables us to perform to our full potential. The Statement on Business Conduct (the Statement) is our guide to the behavior and standards of conduct we should expect of ourselves and each other.

Enbridge operates our business in a complex, dynamic world in which risks are present. We have obligations that are often defined by complex laws and regulations. The Statement shows us how to apply our values and it enables us to recognize and avoid situations that could lead to problems. When difficult situations are unavoidable, the Statement helps us to navigate them, directing us to additional resources or help when appropriate.

Please remember that the Statement is not only a matter of doing what the law and Enbridge policies require us to do; it is about doing the right thing. It helps us build and strengthen mutually beneficial and lasting relationships with our employees, regulators, communities, customers, business partners and investors. When we interpret the Statement, we must observe both the spirit as well as the literal meaning of the Statement’s language.

Our Responsibilities

The Statement applies to Enbridge Inc., its subsidiaries and controlled entities (collectively “Enbridge”) as well as their directors, officers, employees, consultants and contractors in all countries where Enbridge conducts business.

We must always act in accordance with the Statement and all applicable Enbridge policies and laws. Additionally, we should always seek guidance from our People Leaders or the other Enbridge resources listed on page 13 when needed. Any suspected or actual violations of the Statement, Enbridge policies or the law must be reported to our People Leaders or any of the resources listed on page 13.
People Leaders

While everyone who works at Enbridge has a duty to know and comply with the Statement, Enbridge’s People Leaders have additional responsibilities to uphold the Statement and Enbridge’s values.

People Leaders are responsible for:

- Modeling appropriate behaviors that are consistent with the Statement and the Enbridge values
- Being knowledgeable about the Statement, as well as the policies and procedures that may apply to them and the people they lead
- Fostering a positive work environment where only legal, ethical and respectful actions are acceptable – and ensuring that everyone under their direction is accountable for their behavior
- Promoting open communication and trust in the workplace so that employees and contractors feel secure about voicing concerns, without any real or implied threat of retaliation
- Responding promptly when employees or contractors raise concerns and escalating those concerns when necessary to Human Resources, Law or the Ethics and Compliance Department
- Holding the people they lead accountable for compliance with the Statement

The Importance of Speaking Up and Seeking Help

A culture that encourages us to voice our concerns will help Enbridge maintain its reputation as a great place to work. If something does not feel right, each of us should feel empowered to take action without fear of retaliation.

We have an obligation to speak up when we witness behavior that could violate the Statement, the Enbridge values or the law. There are several ways to seek guidance or report a possible violation, including speaking to:

- Your People Leader
- An Ethics and Compliance Officer
- The Chief Compliance Officer
- The Human Resources Department
- The Law Department
- The Enbridge Ethics and Conduct Hotline

Voicing concerns early can prevent a minor issue from becoming a major problem.
Enbridge Ethics and Conduct Hotline

The Enbridge Ethics and Conduct Hotline (Hotline) is operated by an independent third party that provides confidential reporting services to many North American companies and is available 24/7. Reports to the Hotline may be communicated through a toll-free telephone number or through a secure internet portal.

Confidentiality is respected in every case to the extent permitted by policy or law. While making a report, you have the option to identify yourself or to remain anonymous. If you choose to remain anonymous, in some cases it may limit Enbridge’s ability to investigate the issue effectively.

If you report a concern through the Hotline, you will be provided with a reference number that enables the responsible Enbridge Ethics and Compliance Officer to communicate with you through the Hotline’s secure internet portal without the need for you to provide any identifying information. If you choose to remain anonymous, you should check in with the Hotline periodically in case additional information is requested by Enbridge’s Ethics and Compliance Department to assist with the investigation.

The Hotline should be used when you are uncomfortable reporting issues via other established channels within Enbridge. Examples of issues that may be reported through the Hotline include allegations of fraud or financial impropriety, serious misconduct, conflicts of interest, breaches of confidentiality or inappropriate use of Enbridge resources. The Hotline should not be used to report trivial issues or complaints about workplace relationships, performance evaluations, wages or benefits, unless the issue involves a potential violation of Enbridge policies or suspected illegal or unethical behavior.

Retaliation is Strictly Prohibited

Enbridge does not allow retaliation against anyone who makes a report (either internally or to a government authority) or otherwise participates in or assists with an investigation. We all have a duty to protect Enbridge’s employees and contractors against threats of retaliation or actual retaliation by other Enbridge employees or management. An act of retaliation violates the Statement and in many cases it may also be against the law. Any acts of retaliation or attempted retaliation will result in discipline, up to and including termination. However, disciplinary action may be taken against an employee or contractor if he or she participated in a prohibited activity, even if he or she reported it. Additionally, disciplinary action, up to and including termination, may be taken against anyone who makes a report or allegation that he or she knows to be false.
Navigating the Gray: Ethical Decision Making

Ethical dilemmas are rarely black and white. While we are always encouraged to seek guidance from our People Leaders, the Ethics and Compliance Department, Human Resources or Law, the model set out below may help us arrive at ethical decisions that are in alignment with the Statement and the Enbridge values.

How Enbridge Upholds the Statement

Annual Training and Certification

Each of us is expected to follow the standards set forth in this Statement. Any waiver from any part of the Statement requires the approval of the Chief Executive Officer. For executive officers, senior financial officers and members of the board, a waiver requires the express approval of Enbridge Inc.’s board and may require public disclosure.

On the commencement of employment with Enbridge and annually thereafter, all Enbridge employees and provisioned contractors are required to complete a Statement on Business Conduct training course and certify compliance with the Statement. Additionally, employees and provisioned contractors are also required to disclose any actual or potential conflicts of interest.

Investigations

Enbridge investigates all reports of violations or suspected violations of the Statement promptly, fairly and in accordance with our legal responsibilities. Employees, contractors and consultants must cooperate and be truthful when asked to participate in or give statements during the course of an investigation.

Enforcement

Failure to comply with the Statement and all other Enbridge policies may result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination of employment or contract.

Enbridge employees, contractors and consultants have an affirmative duty to report violations of the Statement or Enbridge policies. Failure to report violations of the Statement or Enbridge policies may also be grounds for disciplinary action. Disciplinary action can also result for anyone who interferes or refuses to cooperate with an investigation into alleged or potential violations of the Statement.
Living our Enbridge value of Integrity is key to maintaining the trust and confidence of the people with whom we interact. We pride ourselves on doing the right thing and not taking the easy way out, regardless of how difficult it may be. We maintain truth in all of our dealings, take accountability for our actions and follow through on our commitments.
Avoiding Conflicts of Interest

We compromise the trust placed in us when we put, or appear to put, our personal interests in conflict with Enbridge’s interests. A conflict of interest, or even the appearance of a conflict, can negatively affect our business and reputation. Business decisions must be based on sound and objective judgment, without any concern or possibility that our decisions or objectivity could be influenced by personal considerations. Most conflicts of interest can be avoided or addressed if they are promptly disclosed and properly managed. If we find ourselves in a position where our objectivity could be questioned due to a personal relationship, interest or activity, we must immediately disclose the situation to our People Leaders and the Ethics and Compliance Department and seek guidance about how to address it.

We must use our best efforts to arrange our personal and family relationships, financial interests and outside activities so they do not conflict, or appear to conflict, with our responsibilities to Enbridge.

As a General Rule, we Avoid Conflicts of Interest by:

1. Seek Guidance
   - The Statement does not contain an exhaustive list of all potential conflict of interest situations. As a first step, you must ask yourself the questions listed below to determine whether you might be placing yourself in a conflict of interest.
   - Will I feel obligated to someone else?
   - Is there a chance – however small – that my independent judgment will be compromised?
   - Would my decision or action give the appearance of divided loyalty?

   If you answered “yes” to any of these questions, it is likely that your decision or action will result in a real or perceived conflict of interest.

   If you are unsure about how to proceed, you must seek guidance from your People Leaders and the Ethics and Compliance Department.

2. Awareness
   - Always being aware of situations that could create an actual, perceived or potential conflict of interest

3. Responsibility
   - Never allowing anything we do, whether on the job or in our free time, to conflict with our responsibilities to Enbridge

4. Judgment
   - Never allowing a personal relationship or activity to impair our ability to use independent, objective judgment when acting on Enbridge’s behalf

5. Investments and Financial Interests
   - We avoid conflicts of interest arising from our investments or financial affairs by:
     - Ensuring that our own investments and business relationships do not interfere with our ability to act in the best interests of Enbridge at all times
     - Disclosing investments or holdings (whether direct or indirect) of five percent or more in any entity doing business with Enbridge
Gifts and Entertainment

We never ask for gifts or entertainment, nor do we accept or give gifts or entertainment that might improperly influence business decisions.

Strong relationships with our customers and business partners are essential and often contribute to Enbridge’s success. Sometimes we provide or receive business courtesies, such as reasonable entertainment and modest gifts. We never allow these courtesies to affect our ability to make objective business decisions or to create the appearance that our objectivity has been compromised.

In some cases, giving or accepting business courtesies, such as favors, gifts, entertainment, discounts, meals, accommodation or transportation might create a perception that these courtesies were granted in order to influence business decisions. We must always be on guard to prevent such a perception from arising.

Never accept or offer gifts that:

- Are in the form of cash or cash equivalents, such as gift certificates or vouchers, except gift cards or gift certificates of modest value (recommended limit of $50 Canadian or U.S.)
- May have significant value or appear so to others
- Are suggestive of special treatment

It is never permissible to accept or offer entertainment that is:

- Not business-related
- Conducted in an inappropriate setting

Please note that frequent exchanges of gifts or entertainment with the same individuals or companies (even if the individual amounts involved are modest) may also create real or perceived conflicts of interest.

We avoid conflicts of interest in this area by:

- Ensuring that any gift, promotional item or entertainment offered or received is of modest value, legal, customary, in good taste and clearly related to the legitimate and proper conduct of Enbridge’s business
- Paying attention to the value of gifts or entertainment, as well as the frequency with which gifts or entertainment are given to or received from any particular individual or company
- Never offering, giving or accepting any gift or entertainment that could create a sense of obligation on the part of the recipient or otherwise improperly influence a business decision
- Never offering or giving a gift or favor to persons in a position of trust or responsibility (especially government or public officials) to induce them to grant favorable treatment to Enbridge or any of its employees
- Never requesting or soliciting gifts or entertainment of any kind from a current or potential contractor, supplier, vendor or other business partner, unless the request is directly connected to a charitable or philanthropic initiative that has been approved by senior management
- Never accepting gifts or entertainment from a contractor, supplier or vendor during any period when Enbridge is seeking proposals or bids for products or services offered by that contractor, supplier or vendor if you have a decision-making role in determining the successful bidder or proposal
- Contacting the Ethics and Compliance Department with any questions about giving or receiving gifts or entertainment

Special rules apply when offering or giving gifts, favors and entertainment to government officials and employees of government or state-owned entities. We should always obtain guidance from the Ethics and Compliance Department before offering or giving any gift, favor or entertainment to such individuals. For additional information, see the section titled Preventing Bribery, Corruption and Illegal Financing Activity.
Outside Employment, Volunteering and Directorships

We must never allow outside activities to interfere with our ability to fulfill our responsibilities to Enbridge.

At Enbridge, we encourage our people to lead fulfilling and enjoyable lives outside of work. Outside activities such as a personal business, a second job, board service or community work may be acceptable as long as we:

• Obtain the approval of our Business Unit President, the CEO or the Board of Directors in case of the CEO, before accepting a position as a director or any similar role with a publicly traded entity or political, government or regulatory agency
• Never allow outside activities to interfere with our job responsibilities, performance or objectivity
• Never participate in activities that compete with Enbridge's current business or potential business opportunities
• Never contract with or provide services to Enbridge outside the scope of our employment
• Ensure that any decisions we make to contribute Enbridge's time or resources for community support or charitable activities are approved by senior management
• Never use Enbridge resources, including other employees, vendors, tools, vehicles, buildings or facilities, computing assets or equipment, for outside activities unless we have express approval from senior management or as otherwise may be expressly permitted by policy
• Avoid activities that might damage Enbridge's business or reputation

 Relatives and Friends

We must use our best efforts to ensure that our personal and family relationships do not interfere with our responsibilities to Enbridge.

We avoid conflicts of interest in this area by:

• Disclosing in a timely fashion any personal or family relationships that might create an actual, perceived or potential conflict of interest to our People Leaders and the Ethics and Compliance Department
• Excluding ourselves from the process of selecting or hiring someone as a contractor, supplier, vendor or employee at Enbridge if we have a personal or family connection with that person and ensuring that the Enbridge personnel responsible for the selection or hiring process are made aware of the relationship
• Excluding ourselves from the process of selecting, managing or influencing a relationship with a contractor, supplier, vendor or other business partner if they employ or are controlled by someone with whom we have a personal or family connection
• Avoiding situations where we could manage, supervise or evaluate the performance of someone with whom we have a personal or family connection
Taking Opportunities from Enbridge

Working for Enbridge will sometimes enable us to identify a business or investment opportunity that Enbridge may have an interest in pursuing. We bring any discoveries or opportunities related to Enbridge’s business to the attention of an appropriate member of Enbridge’s management team.

We avoid conflicts of interest in this area by:

• Never placing ourselves in a position to gain any personal benefit or interest from a transaction with Enbridge
• Never using our knowledge of non-public information about Enbridge’s activities in the pursuit of personal gain

Political Contributions and Government Lobbying

Enbridge strongly supports individual participation in the political process in our communities, including involvement with political parties, candidates or issues. Such activities demonstrate stewardship, by showing that we care about the communities in which we live and work.

Enbridge provides information on its political activities and shares its viewpoint with employees, contractors, customers and the general public. We respect anyone’s right to disagree with the official company positions regarding political preferences. We encourage individuals to exercise their right to vote in local, state/provincial and federal elections.

We avoid conflicts of interest in this area by:

• Making clear that political statements we make are our individual, personal views and not those of Enbridge
• Getting approval from Public Affairs and Communications before performing political activities on company time or using company resources, including photocopy machines, computers, telephones and other forms of company property
• Notifying the Ethics and Compliance Department when making plans to campaign for or serve in public office
• Excusing ourselves from any political matters involving Enbridge when serving in public office

We are expected to follow these guidelines to avoid violating laws and regulations concerning political activities and contributions.

See Enbridge’s Political Contributions Policy.
Protecting Enbridge Assets

We all have an obligation to protect Enbridge’s assets. Assets can include financial assets, physical assets or intangible assets, such as information, intellectual property and our brand and reputation. We act as responsible stewards of Enbridge assets that have been entrusted to our care, including taking personal responsibility to avoid theft, loss, damage, waste and improper use. Similarly, as cyberattacks continue to be on the rise, we must work together and act responsibly in making security a priority whatever our role is at Enbridge. We are all required to read and follow the Enbridge Acceptable Use of Technology Assets Policy.

Financial Assets

- Always handling Enbridge funds honestly, responsibly and in accordance with applicable Enbridge policies
- Never obtaining, using or diverting Enbridge funds for personal benefit or other unauthorized use
- Using corporate credit cards only in accordance with the applicable policy and any related procedures and rules
- Following all Enbridge policies and procedures regarding business travel and entertainment by obtaining approval in advance if we are unsure whether any proposed travel or entertainment complies with applicable policies and procedures

Financial Assets include:

Money and anything that can be converted to money, such as stocks, bonds, loans, deposits, credit and purchase cards
Intangible Assets, including Intellectual Property and Proprietary and Confidential Information

- Limiting access to proprietary and confidential information in our possession to those who need it to do their jobs and are authorized to receive it
- Never discussing confidential information in public places, whether in person or while speaking on mobile phones
- Never working in public places if there is a risk that confidential information can be viewed or overheard by others
- Never disclosing any invention, improvement, concept, trademark, trade secret or design prepared or developed in connection with our employment with Enbridge, except as required to protect or preserve Enbridge’s rights to such property
- Continuing to protect Enbridge’s proprietary and confidential information after the termination of our employment or contract
- Returning all copies of proprietary and confidential information in our possession immediately upon the termination of our employment or contract

Intangible Assets include:

Information, which includes any data relating to Enbridge’s business, no matter how it is created, distributed, used or stored
- Enbridge’s brand, reputation, ideas, inventions, improvements, intellectual property, registered and unregistered copyrights, trademarks, patents and service marks conceived, developed or practiced

Physical Assets, including all Computing Assets

- Preventing loss, damage, theft, waste or unauthorized use of Enbridge assets
- Promptly reporting any loss, damage, misuse or theft of assets entrusted to us personally or to which we have access
- Following all Enbridge procedures that apply to the use of identification cards and restrictions upon access to Enbridge offices, stations and work sites
- Using or authorizing the use of Enbridge vehicles, equipment, supplies and other property for business purposes only, except for incidental personal use of such assets that is expressly authorized by applicable Enbridge policies
- Using Enbridge communications systems and devices responsibly as expressly permitted by the Acceptable Use of Technology Assets Policy
- Never accessing, distributing or creating illegal, obscene, pornographic, defamatory or inappropriate material with Enbridge’s computing assets
- Never leaving confidential information, or devices containing such information, in an unsecured location
- Reporting loss or theft of any Enbridge computing asset or any personal device registered under the Bring Your Own Device (BYOD) program immediately
- Never clicking on untrusted links within email or on websites, and never opening untrusted attachments.

Managing Records Responsibly

We comply with all Enbridge records management policies in order to protect Enbridge’s proprietary and confidential information and ensure that Enbridge complies with its legal and regulatory obligations.

Key Terms & Definitions

Personal information – is information about an identifiable customer, landowner, employee or other individual. It can include an individual’s home address, date of birth, age, race, religion, political affiliation, sexual orientation, social security or social insurance numbers, financial account numbers, medical information and a range of other identifying information that individuals have not expressly consented to share publicly.

Personal information does not include aggregated information that cannot be associated with a specific individual. It also does not typically include business contact information (including name and job title) or information that is publicly available.

Enbridge Record – Enbridge work activities routinely result in the creation and receipt of documents, data and other information (Recorded Information). When Recorded Information provides evidence of Enbridge business transactions, decisions and other significant actions, it is called a Record.

Records can occur in any format (e.g., paper or electronic) or location (e.g., central filing areas, individual work stations or computing media).

Records are subject to Enbridge’s Records Retention Schedule, which establishes standard time periods for keeping different categories of Records.

We Comply with Legal and Regulatory Requirements Related to Records Management by:

- Protecting Enbridge records against unauthorized access, loss or damage
- Being diligent in the creation, storage and retention of records and complying with applicable laws and Enbridge’s records and information management policies
- Never using our Enbridge-issued or personal mobile communication devices to create Enbridge records through text or instant messaging applications
- Using Enbridge email to capture and transmit Enbridge records
- Taking immediate steps to follow and implement any preservation or “legal hold” directive issued by the Law Department
- Collecting, using and disclosing personal information only in accordance with Enbridge’s privacy policies

Ensuring Proper Accounting, Financial Reporting and Public Disclosure

The securities of certain Enbridge entities are publicly traded and Enbridge is therefore subject to securities laws and regulations that require full, true and plain disclosure. We keep complete and accurate books of account, records and other financial documents and publicly disclose material information in a clear, timely and truthful manner.

We Ensure that we Meet our Accounting, Financial Reporting and Public Disclosure Obligations by:

- Complying with the U.S. Sarbanes-Oxley Act and applicable Canadian and U.S. securities laws
- Complying with generally accepted accounting principles and internal controls
- Reporting complete, accurate and timely information for all assets, liabilities, transactions, financial reports and filings
- Never participating in the creation of any record intended to conceal an improper transaction
- Never concealing or working with others to conceal knowledge of any untruthful, misleading or inaccurate statement or record, whether intentionally or unintentionally made
- Speaking up and reporting transactions that do not appear to serve a legitimate commercial business purpose to our People Leaders, the Chief Audit Executive, the Law Department or the Ethics and Compliance Department
- Cooperating with internal and external auditors, the Controller or other officers of Enbridge to ensure that all issues relating to internal and external audit reports are resolved
- Taking care to ensure that any presentations or proposals we make to investors, investment analysts, customers, business partners or others are truthful and do not contain inaccurate or misleading information
- Ensuring that all contracts to which Enbridge is a party are documented in writing
- Never accepting any “side” or “comfort” letters which are not attachments to the main contract except on the advice of the Law Department
- Seeking guidance from the Chief Audit Executive, the Law Department or the Ethics and Compliance Department whenever we are in doubt

How We Work
Fraud is a deliberate deception that is intended to harm another person or organization for personal gain. Unethical actions intended to obtain personal benefits or achieve business goals constitute fraud. Fraud can take many forms, such as theft of property; false entries in Enbridge’s books of account; receipt of improper personal benefits from vendors, customers or other third parties (i.e., kickbacks); expense reports that contain false or misleading information; diverting Enbridge property or funds for personal use; and other acts of dishonesty.

We take personal responsibility to prevent fraud, waste and abuse that could compromise investor value and damage Enbridge’s reputation.

We Prevent Fraud by:

- Reporting any suspicious activities or transactions to the Ethics and Compliance Department, the Chief Audit Executive or the Hotline
- Paying attention to circumstances or situations that create the risk of fraud or theft to Enbridge, our colleagues, customers, shareholders, business partners or others with whom we interact
- Submitting truthful, timely and complete expense claims and time reports with all required supporting documentation
- Following all Enbridge policies and procedures that apply to procurement, vendor selection, contracting and invoice approvals
- Thoroughly reviewing all expense reports (including receipts) prior to approving them (if you are a People Leader)
Avoiding Insider Trading and Tipping

In the course of our day-to-day work, many of us have access to material information about Enbridge (and occasionally other companies) that has not been generally disclosed to the public. We never use or disclose material non-public information about Enbridge or any other company for any purpose, including the buying or selling of securities, except in the necessary course of business.

Insider trading occurs when an individual with knowledge of material non-public information about a company uses that information to purchase or sell securities of that company. Information is “material” if a reasonable person would consider it important in deciding whether to make an investment. Insider trading is illegal and violations of the laws that prohibit insider trading carry significant penalties both for Enbridge and the offenders, including imprisonment within certain circumstances for individuals convicted of insider trading offences.

Information is any material information relating to the business and affairs of Enbridge that has not been generally disclosed to the public and that, if known, would result, or be reasonably expected to result, in a significant change in the market price or value of any securities of Enbridge. Examples of insider information include: unpublished financial results, pending stock splits, dividend policy changes, expansions or curtailments of operations, operational incidents, proposed public or private sales of additional securities, major reorganizations, amalgamations or mergers, anticipated acquisitions or dispositions and pending major litigation. Material information is considered non-public until at least two (2) clear trading days have passed after the public release of the information.

Tipping is illegal and includes directly or indirectly passing along insider information about any company (including Enbridge) to anyone, including friends or relatives, unless the disclosure is made in the necessary course of business. A person who receives insider information about a company from another person is also prohibited from disclosing that insider information to anyone.

Key Terms & Definitions

Insider Information is any material information

We Prevent Insider Trading and Tipping by:

• Complying with the Enbridge Inc. Disclosure Guidelines and Insider Trading and Reporting Guidelines
• Never using insider information to purchase or sell securities of any Enbridge entity that is a reporting issuer, including Enbridge Inc., Enbridge Income Fund Holdings Inc., Enbridge Income Fund, Enbridge Pipelines Inc., Enbridge Gas Distribution Inc., Westcoast Energy Inc., Union Gas Limited, Enbridge Energy Partners, L.P., Enbridge Energy Management, L.L.C., and Spectra Energy Partners, LP, or securities of any other entity that may be involved with an undisclosed transaction to which an Enbridge entity is a party
• Never using insider information to recommend or encourage another person to purchase or sell securities of any Enbridge entity that is a reporting issuer, including the entities listed above, or securities of any other entity that may be involved with an undisclosed transaction to which an Enbridge entity is a party
• Never engaging in tipping (as defined) to anyone, including spouses, friends and relatives
• Only sharing insider information with fellow employees on a “need-to-know” basis
• Protecting insider information from unauthorized disclosure
• Directing all inquiries from financial analysts or others who work in the financial and investment communities to Investor Relations

For more information

see Enbridge Inc. Disclosure Guidelines and Insider Trading and Reporting Guidelines.
We act with integrity by never offering or accepting payments, inappropriate gifts or anything of value that could influence a business decision. We also ensure that Enbridge networks, services or business processes are not used for money laundering or illegal financing activity.

Offering or accepting bribes and/or kickbacks is illegal, unethical and a violation of the Statement. We ensure that all interactions with public officials (including interactions involving agents or third parties retained to act on Enbridge’s behalf) comply with applicable laws prohibiting bribery and corruption wherever Enbridge conducts business. Local customs or the practices of other companies can never be used to justify the payment or receipt of a bribe or any other corrupt act.

We recognize that any allegation or claim that Enbridge may have been complicit in a money-laundering scheme could result in fines or penalties and cause serious damage to our reputation. We must take steps to ensure that our business and systems are not used as conduits to launder money or facilitate criminal activity, including terrorism.

Key Terms & Definitions

A bribe occurs when someone gives or promises another person something of value to obtain a benefit or favorable treatment. Bribes do not always come in the form of cash, bank transfers or even gifts. They can take the form of anything with value, such as job offers, contracts or favors for family and friends.

Kickbacks are payments that may be given or received in return for a favorable decision, outcome or business transaction. For example, if an Enbridge vendor pays a percentage of its service fee to an Enbridge employee in exchange for the employee’s agreement to send more Enbridge business to the vendor, the payment to the employee is a kickback.

Facilitation payments (sometimes called “grease payments”) are payments made to a public official to secure or speed up routine, non-discretionary and legal government actions. Examples include payments made to a public official in order to obtain or expedite permits, processing government papers, providing police protection and scheduling inspections.

Public Officials are representatives, officers or employees of a state-owned or controlled enterprise, including any person acting in an official capacity for or on behalf of any state or political party. Examples can include elected representatives of government, executives and employees of state-owned enterprises, employees of regulatory agencies and law enforcement officers.

Money laundering includes any act that seeks to conceal or disguise the nature or origin of funds derived from illegal activities, such as fraud, corruption, organized crime and terrorism. Money launderers often try to funnel unlawful proceeds through financial transactions and legitimate businesses, making illegal funds appear to be legitimate.

Operating Regulated Businesses

We operate with integrity and build trust in our relationships by complying with all rules and regulations applicable to our many regulated businesses and communicating with regulators in an open and timely manner.

Enbridge’s business and operations are regulated by a multitude of agencies. Regulatory agencies often require Enbridge to comply with orders, permits or certificates that allow Enbridge to charge rates or tolls for services, construct and operate facilities and conduct other aspects of Enbridge’s business. Some regulations or codes also require certain Enbridge entities to comply with standards of conduct regarding matters such as sharing services and sharing information with affiliates.

We Comply with Regulatory Requirements by:

- Understanding the regulatory requirements that apply to our roles at Enbridge
- Complying with all commitments made to regulators and other parties in connection with regulatory proceedings and applications
- Seeking the advice of the Law Department if we are unsure about any regulatory issue or requirement
- Directing inquiries from regulatory agencies to Enbridge personnel expressly authorized to deal with such inquiries
- Seeking guidance from our People Leaders, Law or Public Affairs and Communications if we are unsure whether we are authorized to deal with regulatory agencies
- Ensuring that transactions with affiliated companies are properly documented and priced in accordance with applicable affiliate rules
- Providing for any required physical, financial and information separation between regulated and unregulated businesses
- Conducting regulated services in a non-preferential and non-discriminatory manner

For more information consult with the Law Department or Public Affairs and Communications.
Competition and Anti-Trust Laws

Canada, the United States and many other countries have enacted laws that prohibit certain corporate or individual behaviors that are considered to be anti-competitive. Prohibited behavior can include agreements with competitors to fix or control prices, allocate customers or markets or restrict access to products and services. Competition and anti-trust laws also restrict access to businesses with a dominant position in a marketplace from using their position in a manner that lessens or prevents competition. Competition laws also prohibit making untrue statements of material fact or omitting material facts from promotional materials.

We Comply with Competition and Anti-Trust Laws by:

• Understanding and complying with all applicable competition and anti-trust laws wherever we do business
• Never engaging in the following activities:
  - Entering into agreements with competitors to allocate customers or markets, control prices, boycott suppliers or restrict products and services
  - Abusing a dominant position to lessen competition
  - Misleading advertising
• Contacting the Ethics and Compliance Department or the Law Department immediately if a competitor attempts to discuss any of the above topics with Enbridge
• Conducting all relations with competitors, including social activities, as if they will be examined by law enforcement or regulatory agencies
• Never misrepresenting Enbridge’s offerings or making false claims about competitors’ offerings
• Selecting contractors, suppliers, vendors and other business partners on the basis of merit and objective criteria in accordance with Enbridge’s supply chain management policies
• Communicating honestly in our business relationships and never attempting to gain an unfair advantage through the disclosure of incomplete, inaccurate or misleading information

Responding to Inquiries from Shareholders, Financial Analysts and the Media

Our customers, the investment community and the public rely on the information we release through the media and other communication channels. We take care to avoid inaccurate or unintended disclosure of non-public, confidential or sensitive material about Enbridge or its people. We speak with one voice in an informed way when communicating with the media, financial analysts, investors and the general public.

We refer all external inquiries to the appropriate Enbridge department.

see Enbridge Spokesperson Policy and Enbridge Inc. Disclosure Guidelines.
Using Social Media Responsibly

Social media include websites, networking and online tools which allow users to interact with each other in diverse ways - by instantly sharing information, opinions, knowledge and interests. Social media is an important and influential communication resource that Enbridge uses in several ways: we listen to social media conversations to understand people’s views; we analyze social media metrics to identify and measure trending conversations related to our business; and we pursue engagement opportunities to share our Enbridge stories.

We use Social Media Respectfully and Responsibly by:

• Maintaining constant awareness that our online activities may reflect on Enbridge
• Never engaging in blogging or similar activities that may lead to the disclosure of Enbridge proprietary information or that could harm the reputation of Enbridge and/or any of its employees, contractors, suppliers, vendors, business partners or landowners
• Communicating with integrity and respect, always ensuring our comments are business-appropriate
• Letting people know when views expressed are our own and not those of Enbridge

Enbridge is committed to ensuring everyone returns home safely at the end of each and every day and that our assets are operated in a safe manner. This commitment to safety is based on caring for our employees, our contractors, the communities in which we operate and the environment. The expectations set out in this section are based upon Enbridge’s Health & Safety Principles.
Promoting a Safe and Healthy Workplace

We are all accountable for keeping ourselves and each other safe at work. We do this by following the Enbridge Health & Safety Principles and adhering to all policies and procedures, including our Lifesaving Rules.

We Promote a Safe and Healthy Workplace by:

- Complying with all applicable occupational health and safety laws, regulations, codes and standards
- Ensuring that our actions and decisions are guided and informed by our duty to protect the public, members of our team and the environment
- Basing our actions and decisions on our Health and Safety Principles, Lifesaving Rules and all other Enbridge policies and procedures that apply to us
- Speaking up when we have a safety question or concern

How We Work
Our Health & Safety Principles

1. All injuries, incidents, and occupational illnesses can be prevented.
2. All operating exposures can be controlled.
3. Management is accountable for safety performance.
4. All employees/contractors are responsible for safety.
5. Assessment and improvement are a must.
6. We promote off-the-job health and safety for our employees 24/7.

Our Lifesaving Rules

1. Hazard Management
   Always ensure an analysis of potential hazards has been completed and proper authorization received prior to starting the work.
2. Driving Safety
   Only drive a vehicle or operate equipment when not under the effect of alcohol or any substances that cause impairment.
3. Confined Space Entry
   Always follow procedures for Confined Space Entry.
4. Ground Disturbance
   Always follow procedures for locating, positively identifying and excavating buried facilities.
5. Isolation of Energized Systems
   Always follow procedures for Lockout / Tag-out.
6. Reporting of Safety Related Incidents
   Always report significant safety related incidents.
Safe and reliable operations are the foundation of our business and our success. It is our duty and responsibility to reduce our environmental impact while delivering the energy that powers society.

We are committed to environmental protection and stewardship. We promote responsible environmental practices and continual improvement.

We Protect the Environment by:

- Complying with all applicable environmental laws, regulations, codes, standards and commitments
- Maintaining world-class standards for engineering and design
- Continuously monitoring our infrastructure and operations
- Engaging in ongoing maintenance and enhancement of our pipelines and facilities
- Maintaining comprehensive incident response and environmental mitigation plans to respond – safely, rapidly and effectively – if an incident occurs
- Reporting all environmental incidents and concerns to our People Leaders, our business unit’s Health, Safety and Environment Department, the Law Department or the Ethics and Compliance Department
Upholding the Workplace Alcohol and Drug Policy

Enbridge requires a workplace free from the adverse effects of alcohol or drugs and prohibits its Employees from working while under the influence. This is vital to Enbridge’s reputation and business performance. Additionally, our value of Safety requires that each of us report to work fit for duty, which includes being free from the adverse effects of alcohol or drugs that could impair our actions or judgment, create a dangerous situation or prevent us from doing our jobs safely.

We Uphold the Workplace Alcohol and Drug Policy by:

- Knowing and complying with our Enbridge Workplace Alcohol and Drug policies
- Arriving at work fit for duty and free from any adverse effects of alcohol or drugs that are prohibited under the applicable Workplace Alcohol and Drug policy
- Never using, possessing or selling drugs, controlled substances or drug paraphernalia on Enbridge’s property or while working
- Taking immediate action if we see a co-worker who may be impaired by alcohol or drugs while at work

See applicable Workplace Alcohol and Drug policies.
A positive work environment helps us thrive together – collaborating, innovating and performing at our best. At Enbridge, we value the contributions of others, take the time to understand other perspectives and treat everyone with unfailing dignity and respect.
We Promote an Inclusive and Respectful Workplace by:

- Treating colleagues, contractors, suppliers, vendors, business partners, customers and others in a considerate and professional manner at all times
- Prohibiting unlawful discrimination by reason of race, ancestry, color, ethnic origin, citizenship, religion or creed, gender, sexual orientation, age, marital status, family status, disability or any other characteristic protected by law
- Making employment-related decisions, including decisions about how to recognize, reward or discipline employees, by using objective criteria related to job performance and qualifications and ensuring that results are achieved in a manner consistent with Enbridge's values
- Avoiding any behavior that could reasonably be interpreted by others as violent, offensive, intimidating or insulting
- Reporting any harassing behavior, workplace violence (including threats of violence), instances of improper treatment or discrimination to our People Leaders, Human Resources, Enterprise Security, Law, Ethics and Compliance or the Hotline

At Enbridge, we are committed to maintaining a workplace culture of mutual trust and respect. Employment decisions are based on relevant skills and experience, while always complying with applicable legal requirements.

Everyone has the right to feel safe and supported at work. An inclusive and respectful workplace allows us to be engaged and productive members of the Enbridge team. We value our individual differences, unique perspectives and backgrounds, as well as the variety of contributions we bring to the Enbridge team.

Behavior that interferes with our work or creates an offensive, intimidating, disruptive, abusive or hostile work environment is prohibited and can result in disciplinary action, up to and including termination.
